

Hard Times for Those Times ...

The story of Rachel and Barney Bullard

Rachel and Barney Bullard's story, pieced together by their grandson Vic Bullard, makes tough reading. They were probably not untypical of a poor rural family in the 1800s but nevertheless it's hard not to feel desperately sorry for them as the facts emerge.

This is a précis of what Vic discovered about his family:

“Barney Bullard my great grandfather was born in Tattingsstone in 1845, one of ten children and like most young men in the area Barney was an agricultural labourer for most of his life. In April 1866 Barney married Rachel Moutell at Tattingsstone, she was seventeen and he was twenty. In total they had sixteen children, ten of whom died before their parents. I can account for thirteen of the children the other three must have died very young as they are not mentioned on any census.

Of those thirteen, in 1885 a baby girl died aged sixteen months and then two years later another baby girl died age eight months and if that wasn't bad enough in 1889 tragedy hit the family in a major way because within the space of a few weeks four of their children died age twelve, eleven, nine and four all from diphtheria. Written on their burial certificate is “Tattingsstone Union House” which of course is the Workhouse. So it's a fair assumption that all the deceased children died there and goodness knows how many children in the Workhouse succumbed to this disease.

By 1891 all the children younger than my grandfather had died and all his older siblings had left home but Barney and Rachel had another baby, a little girl, their sixteenth child – they certainly never gave up easily, did they?

Acknowledgement and thanks to Vic Bullard for the information and the photos.

Hard Times for Those Times ...

The photograph of Barney is obviously when he is older and he looks a bit worn out as you would with what he has had to endure over the past years.

As you can see from her photograph Rachel was a formidable looking woman, she certainly had a very stressful life, she died seventeen years before her husband of heart disease on 24th December 1914 at Tattlingstone – yes, on Christmas Eve.

Barney died of old age on the 14th March 1931 at a place called Tattlingstone House he was aged eighty five. So Barney too died in the Workhouse."

Vic Bullard

Jane Kirk
August 2016

Page 71.

BURIALS in the Parish of Tattlingstone in the County of Wilt in the Year 18 88 1889
Name.	Abode.	When buried.	Age.	By whom the Ceremony was performed.
Isaac Hart Valler No. 561.	Tattlingstone	August 15	60 8<sup>11</sup>	W. H. Lane Rector
Benjamin Quinton No. 562.	Tattlingstone Union House	September 9	64 8<sup>11</sup>	E. Jones Curate St. James
Frederic Pinner No. 563.	Tattlingstone	Dec: 23	15 7<sup>11</sup>	J. W. Jones
Edith Spill No. 564.	Tattlingstone	Dec 28	Infant	J. W. Jones
Elizabeth Bullard No. 565.	Tattlingstone	Aug 13 1889	12 7<sup>11</sup>	J. W. Jones offic Minister
Harriet Bullard No. 566.	Tattlingstone Union House	Aug 22	11 7<sup>11</sup>	J. W. Jones offic Minister
Edith Bullard No. 567.	Tattlingstone Union House	Aug 30	4 7<sup>11</sup>	J. W. Jones offic Minister
William Bullard No. 568.	Tattlingstone Union House	Sept 1	9 8<sup>11</sup>	W. H. Lane

Acknowledgement and thanks to Vic Bullard for the information and the photos.